

The Discontented Girls.
MAY Miller went out to take a walk in the fields, one Saturday afternoon. She had been to school all the week, and she was very glad to have a nice ramble. She soon left the dusty road, and roamed about on the hills. Sometimes she watched the brook, and listened to the singing of the birds. Then she watched the gay butterfly, or ran to pluck some bright flower which met her eye. In a word, wherever her light heart prompted her to go, her nimble feet carried her.

She was near the roadside, when she saw a fine coach pass slowly by. There was in it a little girl about Mary's age. When the young lady wished to stop, the driver checked the horses; and when she wished to go forward, they started at his word. A footman was on the stand behind. If the girl saw a flower in the field, or by the roadside, she had only to speak, and the carriage stopped, while the footman ran to fetch it. Indeed, she seemed to have no wish ungratified.

As Mary looked at the coach, her feet lost their lightness, her spirits their gaiety, and her face its smiles. She walked gloomily along, and, with pouting lips, she entered her mother's humble dwelling.

"Have you had a pleasant walk, Mary?" asked her mother.

"Oh, no," said Mary, pettishly. "I should have enjoyed it very well, but the young lady came along in her carriage, and when I saw how happy she appeared with her coachman, and her footman to wait upon her, and remembered that I was a poor girl, and must always go afoot, and wait upon myself, I could hardly help crying. If she wanted any thing she had only to speak, or to point to it, and the footman instantly ran and brought it to her. But when I saw something I wanted, if it was ever so far off, I must go and get it myself."

Her mother's face was scarcely hushed, when Mrs. Parks called at the cottage.

"How did your daughter enjoy her ride this afternoon?" said Mrs. Miller to her friend. "Here it should be told that Helen was lame. She had not walked for three years."

"She would have enjoyed it very well," said the lady, "but just as she came to where she had the finest prospect, she saw your girl skipping about the fields. She watched her happy movements, as she ran wherever her fancy led; and when she remembered that she could never enjoy herself thus, she said she would keep from crying. You can not think," she said, "how sad it is to feel that I must be lifted into the carriage whenever I wish to take the air; and when I see a pretty flower, I can never pick it myself, but must call some one to get it, and fetch it to me. I watched the happy girl for a few minutes, as she danced so gaily among the flowers, and then ordered the footman to bring me a few daisies which grew by the wayside; but before she threw them away, for I could not be so to look at them."

"She then directed the coachman to drive home, that her feelings might no longer be tried by the sight of pleasure which she could not share. When the footman brought her in, and placed her carefully upon a sofa, she laid her face on my lap, and wept."

Thus we see that each of these girls had more to make her happy than she had to be contented with the station in which God has placed her.

Things That Last.
Let us look at some of those things that "will never wear out." I have often heard a poor blind girl sobbingly sing, "Kind words will never die. Ah! we believe that these are among the things that will never wear out." And we are told in God's own book to be "kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another."

The word of the Lord will never wear out. Though the grass shall wither, and the flowers fall away, the word of the Lord endureth forever. (1 Peter, i, 24, 25.)

The life of the righteous will never wear out. They will live in the world to come, as long as God shall live; but the death of the wicked will last forever.

The joys of the kingdom of heaven will never wear out. The pleasures of this world soon die; but the enjoyments of that world will never have an end.

The crown of glory will never wear out. The crown of the winner in the Olympic games soon faded; the crown of glory will last out, but the crown of glory will never fade away. (1 Peter v, 4.)

The "new song" will never wear out. We hear sometimes that some of our tunes are worn threadbare; but that will never be said of the new song.

Which will you choose? The lasting, or that which wastes away? The things of time, or eternity? Will you choose wealth, honor, fame, or the joys of heaven, eternal life, the crown of glory, and the "new song"? May God enable us to make a wise choice, and, with Joshua, may we choose to serve the Lord.

The Sabbath a Loving Day.
"Mother, I suppose one reason why they call the Sabbath a holy day is because it is such a loving day," said a little boy as he stood by his father's side and looked up into his mother's face.

"Why is not every day a loving day?" asked his mother. "I love father, and father loves me, and we both love you and the baby, every day as well as Sunday."

"Well, but you have no time to tell us so on week days," said the little boy. "You have to work, and father has to go off early to his work, and is tired when he comes home, but on Sunday he takes me on his knee and tells me Bible stories, and we go to God's house together, and O, it is such a loving day!"

"Yes, my child," said the father, "it is a holy, loving day. God gave it to us in love, that tired men might rest from their hard work, and fathers, who see but little of their children on other days, might teach them and enjoy them on that day. God is love, and Jesus Christ is love, and the Sabbath is a gift of love."

Facts in Human Life.
The number of languages and dialects spoken in the world amount to 3,000. The inhabitants of the globe possess more than 1,000 different religions. The number of men is about equal to the number of women. The average of human life about thirty-three years. One quarter die previous to the age of seven years, one-half before reaching seventeen, and those who pass this age enjoy a felicity refused to one-half of the human species. To every one hundred persons only one reaches one hundred years of life; to every one hundred only six reach the age of sixty-five, and not more than one in five hundred live to eighty years of age. There are on the earth 1,000,000,000 inhabitants; and of these 333,333 die every year, 98,832 every day, 3,780 every hour and sixty a minute, or one every second. These losses are about balanced by an equal number of births. The married are longer lived than the single, and above all those who observe a sober and industrious conduct. Tall men live longer than short ones. Women have more chances of life in their favor previous to being fifty years of age than men, but fewer afterwards. The number of marriages is in proportion of seventy-five to every one hundred individuals. Marriages are most frequent after the equinoxes, that is during the months of June and December. Those born in spring are generally more robust than others. Births and deaths are more frequent by night than by day. The number of men capable of bearing arms is calculated at one-fourth of the population.

A Candid Mind.
There is nothing sadder to find a light upon the human mind as candor. It was called whiteness by the ancients, for its purity; and it has always won the esteem due to the most admirable of the virtues. However little sought for or practiced, all do it to the homage of their praise, and feel the ennobling power of its influence. The man whose opinions make the deepest mark on his fellow-men, whose influence is the most lasting and efficient, whose friendship is instinctively sought where all others have proved faithless, is not the man of brilliant parts, or flattering tongue, or splendid genius, or commanding power; he whose lucid candor and ingenious truth transmit the heart's real feelings pure and without refraction. There are other qualities which are more showy, and other traits that have a higher place in the world's code of honor, but none wear better, or gather less tarnish by use, or claim a deeper homage in that quiet reverence which the mind must pay to virtue.

COL. ISAAC R. HAWKINS, Congressman from the Seventh District of Tennessee, on invitation, addressed the Legislature. He discussed the questions of rebel and negro enfranchisement, and while emphatically opposed to extending amnesty to rebels, urged on the Legislature the propriety and justice of giving the ballot to the freedmen.

Indications all point in the direction that these suggestions will be acted upon in the House especially.

A HOUSE was rented in Minnesota "till cold weather," and during the cold snap in October, the occupant received notice to quit. He refused, and the matter brought into court. It was judicially decided that cold weather does not come till the first of December. The "dork" of the weather" is expected to govern himself accordingly.

It is reported on pretty good authority that an arrangement has been made between the Government of France and the Government of the United States, by which a certain tract of territory in Mexico shall be devoted to French colonization. It is also reported that, by this arrangement, the rights of the French bondholders will not be in any way disturbed.

A PROMINENT Democrat of Hornellsville, N. Y., pledged himself before election, to one of the clergymen there, that if the Democrats were defeated, he would attend church every Sabbath for two years. He now declares that "he will stand the punishment like a man."

The cholera has again appeared in Oxford, but is confined, says the Citizen, to the colored population. Six cases out of ten were fatal.

A GENIUS named Flaherty, of Washington City, has the following posted on his window: "Eggs newly laid here on the shortest notice."
